

ABSTRACT

A mailing list test service is disclosed that involves a plurality of mailing lists, each mailing list including information about a plurality of list members. The service includes 5 sending an e-mail message to each of a subset of list members. At least one response is received, and one of the lists is selected for use based on the received responses.